If you are taking your first steps in drawing pictures by numbers, it is better to follow the instruction accurately

- it is attached to each kit.

When drawing, hold the brush the way you used to hold a pen – this is the easiest and most convenient way.

So that you do not get tired and the result is delicate, the hand must have support.

To begin with, master the usual flakes - try to paint each fragment as evenly as possible, smoothly moving the brush from left to right, spreading the paint in a uniform layer thickness and without protruding from contours.

Apply the paint with thick flakes twice where you want to make it more visible.

When painting on canvas, a beautiful texture is created – the canvas is slightly rough to the touch, covered with a special primer and stretched over a stretcher.

Each area is numbered and corresponds to the number on the paint can.
